PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of H.R. 3020 is to extend the authority of the United States Parole Commission, which is scheduled to expire on October 31, 2005, for an additional 3 years; and to provide the United States Sentencing Commission with authority to adopt emergency guideline changes for obstruction of justice and anabolic steroids.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

Congress initially created the United States Parole Commission in 1976; however, with the creation of the Federal sentencing guidelines, the Parole Commission was slated to expire 5 years after the new system was implemented. Since enactment of the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984, Congress has extended the United States Parole Commission on several occasions, and in 1997, assigned the Parole Commission with the additional responsibility for supervision of criminal offenders convicted of District of Columbia Code violations. In the absence of an extension, offenders, who are subject to parole review, will be able to make claims of ex post facto violations for failure to provide parole review.

Section 21(a) of the “Sentencing Act of 1987” (hereinafter “the Act”), Pub. L. No. 100–182, which can be found in the Notes to 28 U.S.C. Section 994 (“Emergency Amendment Promulgation Authority”) provided the Commission authority to promulgate “temporary amendments” outside its normal amendment cycle upon affirmative vote of at least four commissioners related to an invalidated sentencing guideline, the creation of a new offense or amendment of an existing guideline, or “any other reason relating to the application of a previously established guideline, and determined by the United States Sentencing Commission to be urgent and compelling.” The Act’s authority expired completely in 1989; however, it is revived in those cases where there is an “urgent and compelling” need to address a sentencing issue of congressional or Commission interest.

The Sentencing Commission requires authority to implement the directive at section 6703 of Pub. L. No. 108–458 regarding increasing penalties for obstruction of justice offenses involving international or domestic terrorism. The Act directed the Commission to promulgate amendments to the guidelines within 30 days of enactment, however, it did not exempt the Commission from its normal amendment cycle procedures. The Commission has requested 60 days to promulgate an amendment compliant with this directive.

The “Anabolic Steroid Control Act of 2004,” Pub. L. No. 108–358, directed the Commission to review and, if necessary, amend the Federal sentencing guidelines to reflect the seriousness of steroids offenses. The Commission has begun its review of steroids policy and sentencing trends and requested authority to do so earlier than its normal amendment cycle.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

In compliance with clause 3(c)(3) of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee sets forth, with respect to the bill, H.R. 3020, the following estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

U.S. CONGRESS,

H.R. 3020—United States Parole Commission Extension and Sentencing Commission Authority Act of 2005.

SUMMARY

H.R. 3020 would extend the authorization for the United States Parole Commission for three years (under current law, the commission's authorization will expire on October 31, 2005). In addition, this legislation would grant the United States Sentencing Commission the authority to review and modify penalties for certain criminal acts involving terrorism and for abuse of anabolic steroids. CBO estimates that implementing the bill would cost about $33 million over the 2006–2010 period, subject to appropriation of the necessary amounts. Enacting H.R. 3020 could affect direct spending and revenues to the extent that the U.S. Sentencing Commission would increase penalties for certain offenses as authorized by the bill. Criminal fines are recorded as revenues, then deposited in the Crime Victims Fund and later spent. CBO expects that any additional revenues and direct spending would not be significant because of the relatively small number of cases likely to be affected.

H.R. 3020 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined by the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would not affect the budgets of State, local, or tribal governments.

ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 3020 is shown in the following table. For this estimate, CBO assumes that the legislation will be enacted by the end of fiscal year 2005, that the necessary amounts will be appropriated by the start of each fiscal year, and that outlays will follow the historical rate of spending for the U.S. Parole Commission. The commission received an appropriation of $10 million for 2005, and CBO estimates that this amount, as adjusted for anticipated inflation, would be needed to continue operations over the 2006–2008 period. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 750 (administration of justice).

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. Coble, the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Crime, Terrorism, and Homeland Security for a motion.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Chairman, the Subcommittee on Crime, Terrorism, and Homeland Security reports favorably the bill H.R. 3020 and moves its favorable recommendation to the full House.

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. Without objection, the bill will be considered as read and open for amendment at any point.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. Coble, to strike the last word.

Mr. COBLE. I thank the Chairman.

Mr. Chairman and colleagues, H.R. 3020 extends the authority of the United States Parole Commission, which is scheduled to expire on October 31 of this year, for an additional 3 years and provides the United States Sentencing Commission with authority to adopt emergency guideline changes for obstruction of justice and anabolic steroids.

The United States Parole Commission is scheduled to expire, as I said, on October 31, 2005. The Parole Commission, as you all know, is responsible for handling parole cases for offenders who were sentenced prior to the enactment of the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984 and the adoption of the Federal Sentencing Guidelines. In addition, in 1997 it was assigned responsibility for supervision of offenders in the District of Columbia. The extension is needed in order for the offenders to continue to receive parole review of any sentences and for parole supervision.

Finally, the provision relating to the Sentencing Commission's authority is needed to ensure that the Commission can adopt emergency guideline as directed by Congress in order to implement one, the directive in section 6703 of Public Law Number 108-458, increasing penalties for obstruction of justice offenses involving international or domestic terrorism; and two, the directive in the Anabolic Steroid Control Act of 2004, Public Law 108-358, to amend the Federal Sentencing Guidelines to reflect the seriousness of steroid offenses.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and yield back the balance of my time.

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. The gentleman from Virginia, Mr. Scott.

Mr. SCOTT. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, H.R. 3020 will reauthorize the United States Parole Commission for an additional 3 years. It will also give the U.S. Sentencing Commission emergency authority to promulgate sentencing guidelines which will implement sentencing policies reflective of recent changes in Federal laws related to sentencing in the areas of obstruction of justice and anabolic steroids.

Both provisions are necessary to continue to properly implement Federal law and therefore I urge my colleagues to support the bill. I yield back the balance of my time.

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. Without objection, all Members may include opening statements in the record at this point.

Are there any amendments? Are there any amendments?

If there are no amendments, a reporting quorum is present.

The question occurs on the motion to report the bill H.R. 3020 favorably as amended. All those in favor will say aye. Opposed no.

The ayes appear to have it. The ayes have it. The motion to report favorably is adopted.

Without objection, the staff is directed to make any technical and conforming changes and all Members will be given 2 days, as provided by the House rules, in which to submit additional dissenting, supplemental or minority views.

[Intervening business.]

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. Now I believe we have concluded the agenda. Without objection, the Committee stands adjourned.

[Whereupon, at 10:24 p.m., the Committee was adjourned.]
